Have students do projects leading up to the event. For example, students can

- .design their own book jacket
- .make posters
- . draw pictures of characters and settings in my books
- . have class discussions
- , do creative writing assignments
- perform skits of scenes from my books
- write short reviews of my books

Have a creative writing contest with the prize being lunch with me for a group of ten or fewer students.

Have students go to my website - www.happyteachershappystudents.com and write five book related questions to ask me that they didn't find answers to.

Publicize the visit in the school newsletter and on the schools' website.

Invite parents to come hear my presentation or have lunch with me.
